BULLETIN

June 1976

EAA PARTICIPATION

SALE OF SMOKE DETECTION DEVICE

1. As Safety and Health Official for the Agency, I wish to express strong support for a service by the Employee Activity Association (EAA) to safeguard the lives and property of employees in the event of fire at home.
2. For a limited time, commencing on 15 June 1976, EAA will sell Early Warning Ionization Smoke Detectors at the manufacturer's cost of $37.50. The devices have been tested and approved by experts in the field of Fire Prevention, and are recommended by these same experts as a valuable and effective aid to home safety.
3. Home fires in this country take an annual toll of thousands of lives and almost a billion dollars in property damage. The lack of early warning capability results in many lives being lost because of smoke inhalation, toxic gases, and suffocation, compounding the tragedy involved in the loss of life by fire itself.
4. All employees are urged to consider the benefits of the EAA offer, as it relates to the safety of their families, themselves, and their property.

Deputy Director for Administration
